

People

The People Lens should allow you to find any contact that you have available to you, regardless of the source. Contacts can come from a e-mail application, a social network site (probably handled by Gwibber), or another source.

Quick Preview makes no sense here, because all the information is already shown, so it's not available here.

If at all possible, this should be integrated with the new Gnome 3.2 Contacts application to show the same options in the Dash as that application. This will ensure integration with the rest of the Desktop.

For editing the information, we should add a button titled 'Manage contacts', that opens the Gnome Contacts with the right contact focused (if at all possible).
